

Top 4 Benefits of a Behavioral Health EHR

1

Tailored workflows

Workflows, capabilities and documentation help deliver a more accurate patient record across varying venues of care.

2

Reporting & analytics

Insights from near real-time clinical and financial data ensure end-users receive the most accurate information possible.

3

Unified EHR

One unified health record streamlines workflows to improve delivery of behavioral health and primary care.

4

Interoperability & third-party connection

Patient information bridges disparate systems and care venues while seamlessly connecting with third-party data to improve patient care and reduce operational costs.

Because behavioral and physical health are connected, the data and care that support it should, too.

Learn more about our behavioral health EHR at cerner.com/behavioralhealth